How the American People Pay Off Their Debts
A statement of the debt extinguishment of our country since the war never ceases to be impressive. It reflects not only the growth, but the patriotism and prosperity of our people as no other statistical exhibit does. The mere fact is startling that twenty-five years ago, less than a generation, the public debt was $2,756,000,000, consisting of an annual interest charge of $151,000,000, and it is now only $21,000,000, and the interest charge is but $29,500,000.

The face of the debt has decreased to one-third its maximum size, while the interest charged has decreased to one-fifth its highest amount, owing to refunding at the constantly declining rates of interest.

In the past ten years a large proportion of the debt has been extinguished. At the time of the 1880 census the public debt was $1,019,000,000, and the interest charge was $79,500,000, so that in a decade the debt has been reduced $988,000,000, or say $1,000,000,000.

It will thus be seen that if the country remains prosperous and continues to be well governed, it will be entirely possible to extinguish the entire remaining public debt in the next ten years, so that the people of the United States could, if they choose, enter upon the twentieth century with a net surplus in the treasury. It has been the historical fiscal policy of our country to pay off its debt; we presume it will continue to be.

The present census will show 65,000,000 people in the United States, in all probability, and this will figure a debt at the present time of only $14 per inhabitant, which is small, while the interest charge of $29,417,608 entails a tax of less than 50 cents per year per inhabitant.

Our reader will see from this how slight a burden the national debt is in comparison with the real taxation of the people, which is local taxation, ranging all the way from $9 to $19 per 1,000. The problems which confront this generation of Americans are not those of poverty, certainly.—Boston Daily Advertiser.

HE WANTED A MODEL.—A famous New York painter, an enthusiast in his art, has a craze for models with red hair. He was going through a down town street when he happened to see a young girl with the all-desired locks burying along with a pitcher of beer. She was a striking specimen of animal beauty, and she did not seem to have very much to protect her from the breeze besides the clinging calico wrapper that draped her fine form. The moment the artist saw her he quickened his pace, calling out as he approached:

"Hi there! you girl! you with the red hair. Stop!" She gave a swift look over her shoulder, and seeing the strange man making toward her, she began to run. The artist did likewise. Down the street fled the terrified girl, her face as white as death and her hair blowing over her head as she fled along. The street boys joined in the chase, and a policeman, thinking the girl a thief, intercepted and brought her to a halt, panting like a deer.

"I have done nothing," she cried, glaring at the artist as he came up.
"Has she stolen anything from you?" asked the policeman.
"Oh, no, indeed," replied the artist, "I never saw her before. I only wanted to ask her to come up to my studio and pose for me. I am an artist, you know, and I need red hair."

The boys set up a shout. The policeman looked at the artist as though he were an escaped lunatic, and called him a very eccentric name. The girl, in the meantime, had recovered her breath, and when the undaunted artist asked if she was willing to pose for him she declined in language that made the gamins howl with delight, and gave to the artist a shock that he will never get over.—Utica (N. Y.) Observer.

PILGRIMAGE TO ST. ANNE DE BEAUPRE.—Some wonderful cures have been wrought recently at the beautiful shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre at Quebec, and the Catholics of Connecticut are arranging a pilgrimage to the ancient city on July 21. Every parish in Connecticut is invited, and it is likely that an imposing body of religious pilgrims will start northward by train on the date noted. The sick, lame, and blind will join in the pilgrimage, hoping to be healed of their infirmities at the wonderful shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre.

BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

STATIONERY
Is as indispensable to the modern traveller or stay-at-home as are the necessities of life. We cannot get along without it. Each being the case, we keep a full supply of everything to satisfy all demands, all tastes, all pocket-books.

This being the season of travel and recreation, we call attention to the following:
A prime requisite is a box of Paper and Envelopes in compact form. We have it in a variety of styles, commercial and octavo sizes. In this department we constantly maintain a stock of the best and most exclusive Writing Papers, appropriate for all forms and needs of polite correspondence. The varieties of paper shown embrace the productions of the leading manufacturers of high-grade Writing Papers of domestic and foreign make.

Correspondence Cards, new styles and cheaper than ever.
All the standard makes of Pens, in every size, shape and price, from 5c upwards. Take note of this with you in a traveling trunk, of which we have a large variety; for, if you use a typographic or Fountain Pen, have it filled with this ink. If you do not possess one of these Pens, let us sell you one of the latest and best patterns, ranging in price from $1 upwards.

Portfolios and Writing Tablets are always valuable. You can sit down on the beach or wherever you please, quietly and alone, free from observing eyes, and write that letter which needs a long reply.

If you are out of town and cannot examine for yourself our complete stock of Stationery and Fancy Goods, send us your orders and we will send you in return just what you want.
